Help us get the community talking

Do you have an interest in children's development and are willing to 'spread the word'. We provide a practitioner network to discuss and develop support for speech, language and communication needs.

What skills do you need?

You will make a great communication ambassador if you can talk to other parents, are willing to learn and share the things you learn with other parents and carers. Most of all you need enthusiasm to take part.

Join us once a month for training in early development with a focus on speech, language and communication development.

For more information please contact Shirley on 01782 232977 or email on shirley.ottaway@stoke.gov.uk

What is Stoke Speaks Out?

Stoke Speaks Out was set up to train and support parents, carers, practitioners and anyone in contact with families to make communication 'everybody's business'. We know that the majority of brain growth takes place in the first 3 years of life so Stoke Speaks Out is focused on early life and early education to ensure all children are supported as well as they can be. If you would like any further information please visit our website.
